Description/content

Intercultural competency is getting more and more important - also in theology and the church(es).

The BA programme "Intercultural Theology Migration and Global Cooperation" (ITMGC) is practice-oriented and open to prospective national and international students of all denominations and cultural backgrounds.

The course is consistently interdisciplinary. It includes theological, biblical, religious, and social disciplines. A major focus of the programme includes studies of intercultural theology, hermeneutics, and interreligious dialogue. Additionally, interdisciplinary modules such as "Migration and Interculturality in the Bible", "Social Justice from a Theological and Social Perspective", and "Counselling" are taught.

Other main focal areas of the degree programme are modules on
- global cooperation in church, ecumenical and interreligious institutions
- local church work in an intercultural and migrational context
- leadership, organisation and project management in faith-based organisations as much as in religious NGOs or FBOs
A twelve-week long-term internship with a church or another religious organisation offers students the opportunity to put into practice what was learned in the practice-oriented modules, e.g., "Interreligious Dialogue in Practice", "Church and Congregational Leadership", or "Counselling in an Intercultural Context". In this way, the students gain practical work experience.

The full-time programme is modularised, based on 180 ETCS during six semesters.

During the course, students will acquire theological, social, and methodological competencies. They will learn to engage in intercultural and theological dialogue. They will improve their interfaith leadership and development skills and learn to build bridges between different cultures and approaches to Christian faith.

The course qualifies students for jobs in church, diaconia or church-related organisations and/or development-oriented institutions in a global context as well as in congregations with "migrant backgrounds".

In addition, the BA offers access to subject-related Master’s programmes at higher academic institutions.

International elements
- Training in intercultural skills
- International guest lecturers
- Language training provided
- Study trips

Description of other international elements
Subjects and themes of the study programme have a direct reference to international and intercultural aspects. Studies of intercultural theology and hermeneutics are a major focus on the degree course. Further focal points of the degree course are modules on migration and interculturality in the bible, interreligious dialogue, global cooperation in church, ecumenical and interreligious institutions or local church work in an intercultural and migrational context.

Lectures and campus life are enriched by the cultural and religious diversity of students from more than 40 countries worldwide. Before, during and after lectures, students develop their intercultural communication skills.

It is not an absolute obligation, but it is highly recommended that the students carry out the compulsory long-term internship abroad. The lecturers support the students with the implementation of the internship abroad.

The course qualifies graduates for work in international and intercultural-theological settings such as churches, diaconia organisations and/or development-oriented institutions in a global context.

Integrated internships
A long-term internship of twelve weeks is to be completed during the fifth semester.

Course-specific, integrated German language courses
No

Course-specific, integrated English language courses

Funding opportunities within the university
- Yes

Description of the above-mentioned funding opportunities within the university
- The FIT scholarships are awarded by the Evangelical-Lutheran Mission in Lower Saxony (ELM) and FIT Hermannsburg. With these scholarships, both institutions want to foster advanced studies in intercultural theology and promote intercultural/interreligious and ecumenical cooperation between people of different denominational/religious, cultural and national backgrounds. The scholarships give students the opportunity to study for a Bachelor’s degree while developing professional skills and acquiring intercultural competencies. Scholarship holders are required to live in Hermannsburg and partake in the activities of the international community on FIT campus.

The scholarships are awarded to students with an outstanding educational background resp. academic record, who are highly interested in theology and intercultural work. Preference is given to applicants, who without a scholarship would not be able to study.

Requirements / Registration

| Academic Admission Requirements | Requirements for admission to the Bachelor’s programme are a higher education entrance qualification for a higher education institution in Lower Saxony, i.e., a) a certificate of aptitude for specialised short-course higher education, b) a general university entrance qualification, or c) a university entrance qualification restricted to particular subjects.

Applicants with an equivalent school leaving certificate - see a) above - or vocational training with at least three years of work experience in an area related to the BA degree will also be considered.

Furthermore, applicants must pass a compulsory admission interview, carried out by the FIT, before they can be accepted. |

| Language requirements | Applicants will only be considered for admission if they submit the following with their application: proof of proficiency in English, e.g., TOEFL, with a minimum score of at least 72.

Applicants who obtained their university entrance qualifications at an English-speaking institution are exempted from this regulation. |

| Application deadline | The application deadline is 15 September in the respective year.

Students from NON-EU-countries requiring a visa must submit their applications to FIT as soon as possible, but not later than 15 June. International students have to apply for a student visa at the German embassy in their respective countries. The issuing of visas can take up to several months in some countries. |

Support programmes for international students

Students are taught in small groups by internationally experienced lecturers in an environment conducive to studying. A dedicated supervisor supports students during essay writing and the Bachelor’s thesis.

Before the beginning of the first semester there is an orientation week for new international students, which provides valuable information about the University of Applied Sciences (staff, campus, introduction to the study course) and Hermannsburg. Moreover, trips to interesting spots in Lower Saxony and leisure activities are offered to new students. Additionally, students receive a brochure in English with helpful information on the FIT, its programmes, schedules, administrative matters, cooperation partner, scholarships, and the environment of Hermannsburg.

A native English-speaking student adviser assists international students with all administrative questions regarding their stay in Germany, e.g., enrolment, visa, Foreigner’s Registration Office, and health insurance.

Supervisor-student ratio

Each student has his/her dedicated supervisor.
