

INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMMES

Table of Contents

Master's degree	. 2
MSc International Health • Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München • München	. 2

Master's degree

MSc International Health

Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München • München

Overview

Teaching language English Courses are held in English only. Master's theses are also written in English only. Programme duration 2 semesters Beginning Winter semester Application deadline The application period for the MSc is from 1 December until 31 January. For updates regarding deadlines, admission requirements and the application process, please check our website on a regular basis: https://www.cih.lmu.de Tuition fees per semester in EUR Combined Master's degree / PhD programme No Description/content The postgraduate Master's programme in International Health (MSc IH) is conducted by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine - Teaching and Training Unit (T&TU) and the CIH LNU Center for International Health. The MSc programme focuses on health-related challenges in low- and middle-income settings. The interdisciplinary approach aims to provide students with knowledge in international and global health, company, and politics. Furthermore, students will be trained in research methods and skills in order to conduct research for their MSc theses. With international participants and small groups, individual guidance will be provided. Lectures take place in the beautiful city of Munich. During the advanced part of their studies, students may take part in modules across the globe by the tropic of neglections. The MSc IH may be combined with the Diploma in Tropical Medicine and International Health (OTMIH). Please visit our website for further information and contact us if you are interested in this option.
Languages Courses are held in English only. Master's theses are also written in English only. Programme duration 2 semesters Winter semester Application deadline The application period for the MSc is from 1 December until 31 January. For updates regarding deadlines, admission requirements and the application process, please check our website on a regular basis: https://www.cih.lmu.de Tuition fees per semester in EUR Combined Master's degree / PhD programme No Description/content The postgraduate Master's programme in International Health (MSc IH) is conducted by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine - Teaching and Training Unit (T&TU) and the CIH LMU Center for International Health. The MSc programme focuses on health-related challenges in low- and middle-income settings. The interdisciplinary approach aims to provide students with knowledge in international and global health, covering global public health, infectious and non-communicable diseases, chronic diseases, health economy, and politics. Furthermore, students will be trained in research methods and skills in order to conduct research for their MSc theses. With international participants and small groups, individual guidance will be provided. Lectures take place in the beautiful city of Munich. During the advanced part of their studies, students may take part in modules across the globe by the troped network and/or select from a wide range of modules offered by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine at the University Hospital of the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München. The MSc IH may be combined with the Diploma in Tropical Medicine and International Health (DTMIH). Please visit our website for further information and contact us if you are interested in this	Degree	Master of Science in International Health (MSc International Health)
Programme duration Beginning Winter semester Application deadline The application period for the MSc is from 1 December until 31 January. For updates regarding deadlines, admission requirements and the application process, please check our website on a regular basis: https://www.cih.lmu.de Tuition fees per semester in EUR Combined Master's degree / PhD programme No Dint degree / double degree programme No The postgraduate Master's programme in International Health (MSc IH) is conducted by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine - Teaching and Training Unit (T&TU) and the CIH. LML Center for International Health. The MSc programme focuses on health-related challenges in low- and middle-income settings. The interdisciplinary approach aims to provide students with knowledge in international and global health, covering global public health, infectious and non-communicable diseases, chronic diseases, health economy, and politics. Furthermore, students will be trained in research methods and skills in order to conduct research for their MSc theses. With international participants and small groups, individual guidance will be provided. Lectures take place in the beautiful city of Munich. During the advanced part of their studies, students may take part in modules across the globe by the tropEd network and/or select from a wide range of modules offered by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine at the University Hospital of the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universitat München. The MSc IH may be combined with the Diploma in Tropical Medicine and International Health (DTMIH). Please visit our website for further information and contact us if you are interested in this	Teaching language	• English
Application deadline The application period for the MSc is from 1 December until 31 January. For updates regarding deadlines, admission requirements and the application process, please check our website on a regular basis: https://www.cih.lmu.de Tuition fees per semester in EUR Combined Master's degree / PhD programme No Joint degree / double degree programme No Description/content The postgraduate Master's programme in International Health (MSc IH) is conducted by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine - Teaching and Training Unit (T&TU) and the CIH LMU Center for international Health. The MSc programme focuses on health-related challenges in low- and middle-income settings. The interdisciplinary approach aims to provide students with knowledge in international and global health, covering global public health, infectious and non-communicable diseases, chronic diseases, health economy, and politics. Furthermore, students will be trained in research methods and skills in order to conduct research for their MSc theses. With international participants and small groups, individual guidance will be provided. Lectures take place in the beautiful city of Munich. During the advanced part of their studies, students may take part in modules across the globe by the tropEd network and/or select from a wide range of modules offered by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine at the University Hospital of the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universitat München. The MSc IH may be combined with the Diploma in Tropical Medicine and International Health (DTMIH). Please visit our website for further information and contact us if you are interested in this	Languages	Courses are held in English only. Master's theses are also written in English only.
Application deadline The application period for the MSC is from 1 December until 31 January. For updates regarding deadlines, admission requirements and the application process, please check our website on a regular basis: https://www.cih.lmu.de Tuition fees per semester in EUR Combined Master's degree / PhD programme No Description/content The postgraduate Master's programme in International Health (MSc IH) is conducted by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine - Teaching and Training Unit (T&TU) and the CIH LMU Center for International Health. The MSc programme focuses on health-related challenges in low- and middle-income settings. The interdisciplinary approach aims to provide students with knowledge in international and global health, covering global public health, infectious and non-communicable diseases, chronic diseases, health economy, and politics. Furthermore, students will be trained in research methods and skills in order to conduct research for their MSc theses. With international participants and small groups, individual guidance will be provided. Lectures take place in the beautiful city of Munich. During the advanced part of their studies, students may take part in modules across the globe by the tropEd network and/or select from a wide range of modules offered by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine at the University Hospital of the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München. The MSc IH may be combined with the Diploma in Tropical Medicine and International Health (DTMIH). Please visit our website for further information and contact us if you are interested in this	Programme duration	2 semesters deadlines, admission requirements and the application process, please check our website on a regular basis: https://www.cih.lmu.de Tuition fees per semester in EUR Combined Master's degree / PhD programme No Joint degree / double degree programme No Description/content The postgraduate Master's programme in International Health (MSc IH) is conducted by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine - Teaching and Training Unit (T&TU) and the CIH LMU Center for International Health. The MSc programme focuses on health-related challenges in low- and middle-income settings. The interdisciplinary approach aims to provide students with knowledge in international and global health, covering global public health, infectious and non-communicable diseases, chronic diseases, health economy, and politics. Furthermore, students will be trained in research methods and skills in order to conduct research for their MSc theses. With international participants and small groups, individual guidance will be provided. Lectures take place in the beautiful city of Munich. During the advanced part of their studies, students may take part in modules across the globe by the tropEd network and/or select from a wide range of modules offered by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine at the University Hospital of the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München. The MSc IH may be combined with the Diploma in Tropical Medicine and International Health (DTMIH). Please visit our website for further information and contact us if you are interested in this	Beginning	Winter semester
Combined Master's degree / PhD programme Joint degree / double degree programme No Description/content The postgraduate Master's programme in International Health (MSc IH) is conducted by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine - Teaching and Training Unit (T&TU) and the CIH LMU Center for International Health. The MSc programme focuses on health-related challenges in low- and middle-income settings. The interdisciplinary approach aims to provide students with knowledge in international and global health, covering global public health, infectious and non-communicable diseases, chronic diseases, health economy, and politics. Furthermore, students will be trained in research methods and skills in order to conduct research for their MSc theses. With international participants and small groups, individual guidance will be provided. Lectures take place in the beautiful city of Munich. During the advanced part of their studies, students may take part in modules across the globe by the tropEd network and/or select from a wide range of modules offered by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine at the University Hospital of the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München. The MSc IH may be combined with the Diploma in Tropical Medicine and International Health (DTMIH). Please visit our website for further information and contact us if you are interested in this	Application deadline	deadlines, admission requirements and the application process, please check our website on a
Description/content	_	6,000 EUR
Description/content The postgraduate Master's programme in International Health (MSc IH) is conducted by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine - Teaching and Training Unit (T&TU) and the CIH LMU Center for International Health. The MSc programme focuses on health-related challenges in low- and middle-income settings. The interdisciplinary approach aims to provide students with knowledge in international and global health, covering global public health, infectious and non-communicable diseases, chronic diseases, health economy, and politics. Furthermore, students will be trained in research methods and skills in order to conduct research for their MSc theses. With international participants and small groups, individual guidance will be provided. Lectures take place in the beautiful city of Munich. During the advanced part of their studies, students may take part in modules across the globe by the tropEd network and/or select from a wide range of modules offered by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine at the University Hospital of the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München. The MSc IH may be combined with the Diploma in Tropical Medicine and International Health (DTMIH). Please visit our website for further information and contact us if you are interested in this		No
Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine - Teaching and Training Unit (T&TU) and the CIH LMU Center for International Health. The MSc programme focuses on health-related challenges in low- and middle-income settings. The interdisciplinary approach aims to provide students with knowledge in international and global health, covering global public health, infectious and non-communicable diseases, chronic diseases, health economy, and politics. Furthermore, students will be trained in research methods and skills in order to conduct research for their MSc theses. With international participants and small groups, individual guidance will be provided. Lectures take place in the beautiful city of Munich. During the advanced part of their studies, students may take part in modules across the globe by the tropEd network and/or select from a wide range of modules offered by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine at the University Hospital of the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München. The MSc IH may be combined with the Diploma in Tropical Medicine and International Health (DTMIH). Please visit our website for further information and contact us if you are interested in this		No interdisciplinary approach aims to provide students with knowledge in international and global health, covering global public health, infectious and non-communicable diseases, chronic diseases, health economy, and politics. Furthermore, students will be trained in research methods and skills in order to conduct research for their MSc theses. With international participants and small groups, individual guidance will be provided. Lectures take place in the beautiful city of Munich. During the advanced part of their studies, students may take part in modules across the globe by the tropEd network and/or select from a wide range of modules offered by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine at the University Hospital of the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München. The MSc IH may be combined with the Diploma in Tropical Medicine and International Health (DTMIH). Please visit our website for further information and contact us if you are interested in this	Description/content	Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine - Teaching and Training Unit (T&TU) and the take place in the beautiful city of Munich. During the advanced part of their studies, students may take part in modules across the globe by the tropEd network and/or select from a wide range of modules offered by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine at the University Hospital of the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München. The MSc IH may be combined with the Diploma in Tropical Medicine and International Health (DTMIH). Please visit our website for further information and contact us if you are interested in this		interdisciplinary approach aims to provide students with knowledge in international and global health, covering global public health, infectious and non-communicable diseases, chronic diseases, health economy, and politics. Furthermore, students will be trained in research methods the tropEd network and/or select from a wide range of modules offered by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine at the University Hospital of the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München. The MSc IH may be combined with the Diploma in Tropical Medicine and International Health (DTMIH). Please visit our website for further information and contact us if you are interested in this
(DTMIH). Please visit our website for further information and contact us if you are interested in this		the tropEd network and/or select from a wide range of modules offered by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine at the University Hospital of the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität
		(DTMIH). Please visit our website for further information and contact us if you are interested in this

Course Details

Course organisation

- International health fundamentals (incl. Medical School, Policy & Politics, Health Problems & Responses)
- Research methods
- Research design
- Management and communication skills
- Six advanced modules (a duration of approx. one to two weeks each) according to the student's own interest

The following modules are currently offered by the Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine at the University Hospital of the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München (taking place in Munich, in low- and middle-income countries or online):

- Academic Teacher Training for Health Professions
- o Applied Clinical Research
- Global Mental Health in Low- and Middle-Income Settings
- Current laboratory techniques in infectious diseases: Molecular detection and cloning of pathogens and parasitology
- Introduction to Health Geographic Information System (GIS)
- Public Health Systems Challenges and Opportunities: The Case of Nepal
- Vector Biology and Control in Ghana
- o Global Nutrition
- o Project Management: Symposium Planning
- Master's thesis and oral defence

» PDF Download

A Diploma supplement will be issued

Yes

Certificates for specific modules are awarded

Yes

International elements

- International guest lecturers
- Integrated study abroad unit(s)
- Training in intercultural skills
- Projects with partners in Germany and abroad
- International comparisons and thematic reference to the international context

Integrated study abroad unit(s)

The Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine at the University Hospital of the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München currently offers two advanced modules abroad:

- Public Health Systems Challenges and Opportunities: The Case of Nepal
- Vector Biology and Control in Ghana

Further advanced modules can be selected from a variety of modules worldwide that have been accredited by the tropEd Network, provided that sufficient ECTS credit points have been achieved.

$Integrated\ internships$

None

Course-specific, integrated German language courses

Yes

Course-specific, integrated English language courses

No

Costs / Funding

Tuition fees per semester in EUR	6,000 EUR
Semester contribution	approx. 124 EUR per semester
Costs of living	Living costs (including accommodation and health insurance) in Munich range from 1,000 to 1,500 EUR per month.
Funding opportunities within the university	No

Requirements / Registration

Acad	lemic	ad	lmi	issi	on
requ	ireme	ent	S

Completed, first university degree of min. 240 ECTS credit points in a health-related science (usually equivalent to a full-time, four-year university degree programme with eight semesters). Applicants who have a qualifying, first degree of six semesters and 180 ECTS credit points may be admitted to the MSc programme if they meet additional requirements (i.e. additional courses and/or work experience). If this applies to you, please contact the MSc Programme Coordination for further information.

At least two years of relevant, full-time work experience in the health sector is required. A work duration of two years must have been reached by the time that the application is submitted. Internships usually do not count. Only internships of longer duration can be possibly considered, given their relevant role proven by a respective reference and provided that they are equivalent to full-time employment.

Language requirements

English Language Proficiency: Level C1 according to the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR)

Application deadline

The application period for the MSc is from 1 December until 31 January. For updates regarding deadlines, admission requirements and the application process, please check our website on a regular basis: https://www.cih.lmu.de

Submit application to

https://www.international-health.uni-muenchen.de/education/master_programs/msc_int_health/application-and-requirements/index.html

Services

Possibility of finding parttime employment

The MSc is a one year, full-time programme. Therefore, there is no possibility of finding part-time employment.

Accommodation

The International Office helps visiting academics, PhD students, and postdocs who are travelling to Munich for a set period of time to find accommodation.

For further information, please visit the following link:

https://www.lmu.de/en/study/important-contacts/international-office/index.html

Rooms in shared flats are popular on the private market and reasonably priced at 600 to 800 EUR per month if located in central parts of Munich.

Support for international students and doctoral candidates

• Cultural and linguistic preparation

General services and support for international students and doctoral candidates

Retreat week during the second week of October for introductory purposes and intercultural training.

Weekly consultation hours with the course coordinators

Contact

Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München

University Hospital Center for International Health Division of Infectious Diseases and Tropical Medicine

Lisa Hoffäller

Leopoldstraße 5 80802 München

Tel. +49 89440059815

Course website: https://www.cih.lmu.de/education/study-programs/master-programs/msc-int-health

f https://www.facebook.com/centerinthealth/

Last update 30.06.2024 19:25:56

International Programmes in Germany - Database

www.daad.de/international-programmes www.daad.de/sommerkurse

Editor

DAAD - Deutscher Akademischer Austauschdienst e.V. German Academic Exchange Service Section K23 – Information on Studying in Germany Kennedyallee 50 D-53175 Bonn www.daad.de

GATE-Germany

Consortium for International Higher Education Marketing www.gate-germany.de

Disclaimer

The data used for this database was collected and analysed in good faith and with due diligence. The DAAD and the Content5 AG accept no liability for the correctness of the data contained in the "International Programmes in Germany" and "Language and Short Courses in Germany".

The publication is funded by the German Federal Ministry of Education and Research and by contributions of the participating German institutions of higher education.

