Description/content	Within the framework of the DFG-supported Research Training Group 2845 "Family Matters – Figures of Allegiance and Release" at the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München (LMU München), we are inviting applications for six PhD Positions (TV-L E13, 65%, duration of four years) to commence 1 April 2024. The Research Training Group analyses the literary and media history of family from antiquity to the present. Against the backdrop of the current transformation of traditional family patterns, it aims at investigating modellings of family in literature and media throughout different genres, epochs, cultures, and languages. At the same time, it explores the specific contribution of literature to the constitution of the familial.

Participating disciplines are Comparative Literature; English, American and German Studies; Classics; Scandinavian, Romance and Slavic Studies; Film and Media Studies; and literary Gender Studies.

The languages of communication are German and English.

The research training group offers its members a research environment that stimulates original findings and promises excellent outcomes. Apart from working on their individual research projects, the candidates participate in an additional curriculum (mandatory and optional courses) and are given the opportunity to acquire key skills. International applications are welcome. The LMU München is an equal opportunity employer. The call for applications is explicitly aimed at people of all genders (m/f/d) and strongly encourages applications from female candidates. Disabled candidates with essentially equal qualifications will be given preference.
